Polar Bears Starving Due to Climate Change, Study Proves

A recent study has revealed that polar bears in the Arctic are facing starvation due to climate change. The study, conducted by a team of environmental scientists, found that the diminishing sea ice, which polar bears rely on for hunting seals, is leading to a decline in their population. The researchers predict that if current climate trends continue, polar bears could become extinct within the next 100 years.

Bid to Halt Executions

The Sixth Circuit on Thursday rejected a coalition's lawsuit Thursday that sought to prove Ohio's lethal injection drugs cause serious pain and suffering. The coalition's lawsuit, filed in December, alleged that Ohio's method of execution, which involves the use of drugs to paralyze and then stop the heart, violated the Eighth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Suge Knight Attorney Back on Rap Mogul's Murder Trial

A defense lawyer for Marion "Suge" Knight is back on the rap mogul's murder trial. Knight is accused of being an accessory after murder. The trial was previously halted after Knight's lawyer sought to delay the case due to concerns over his client's health.

Soil Fertilizer the Likely Culprit of Central Valley Smog

A new study published by the University of California, Davis report. The study found that soil fertilizers are the likely cause of smog in the Central Valley, a region known for its poor air quality. The researchers discovered that fertilizers used on crops are releasing nitrogen oxides, which are a major contributor to smog.

Putting on the Ritz: Paris Hotel Fights to Keep Fortune

ASSOCIATED PRESS

A French teacher is suing Facebook for alleged censorship because his account was blocked for alleged nudity. The teacher is seeking $2,000 as a reward for getting his account back. He also claims the blocks were done to pressure him into offering a $2,000 reward to get his account back.

Fights to Keep Fortune

A Republican in court of pulling an end run around a tough legal challenge to prevent his withdrawal of secretary of state, before a judge denied his request to allow him to withdraw from the race. The judge ruled that the Republican had to stay in the race.

Two students were shot inside a Los Angeles middle school on Thursday, according to a school official. A police spokesperson said the shooting occurred at about 9 a.m. at a middle school in the city's northwestern area.

TWA Hotel inside La Guardia Airport, Montauk (Long Island)-style

Time's Best Hotels for a Long Weekend

Arlene Gonzales, 27, a resident of Texas, is suing the city of Houston for custody of her 2-year-old son. Gonzales claims the city is preventing her from traveling to visit him.

Construction Spending Hit New Record as 2017 Ended

The construction industry ended 2017 with a bang, as spending on construction projects reached a new record high. The figures were announced by the Department of Commerce on Thursday. The record spending was driven by increased spending on both residential and non-residential construction projects.

Two Shot Inside LA Middle School

A defense lawyer for Marion "Suge" Knight is back on the rap mogul's murder trial. Knight is accused of being an accessory after murder. The trial was previously halted after Knight's lawyer sought to delay the case due to concerns over his client's health.

Do Not Sell My Info

Privacy Policy

1. California's persistent thirst and led its water officials to announce rollback of clean-water regulations after record rainfall quenched the state's drought in 2017. According to the California Department of Water Resources, the state's reservoirs reached record levels in 2017, and the predicted increase in water supply for 2018 could provide enough water for about 80% of the state's population.

2. The Hawaii's royal family lived, marveling at Honolulu palace for a glimpse of the way the American royalty lived. The royal family lived in the palace for about four decades, during which time they were regarded as symbols of the state's wealth and power.

3. The Monaco, French, and American royalty families lived, marveling at the palace for a glimpse of the way the American royalty lived. The families were known for their lavish lifestyle and enjoyment of the palace's amenities.

4. A new study published by the University of California, Davis report. The study found that soil fertilizers are the likely cause of smog in the Central Valley, a region known for its poor air quality. The researchers discovered that fertilizers used on crops are releasing nitrogen oxides, which are a major contributor to smog.

5. The construction industry ended 2017 with a bang, as spending on construction projects reached a new record high. The figures were announced by the Department of Commerce on Thursday. The record spending was driven by increased spending on both residential and non-residential construction projects.

6. The construction industry ended 2017 with a bang, as spending on construction projects reached a new record high. The figures were announced by the Department of Commerce on Thursday. The record spending was driven by increased spending on both residential and non-residential construction projects.