California lawmakers push for oversight of Delta Tunnels Project

By Alexandra Kopicki

The California Legislature is pushing for oversight of the state’s massive water project, which would be among the largest public works projects in U.S. history. The Delta Tunnels are intended to transport water from the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta to Southern California to ease drought conditions and supply more water for agriculture.

The project has faced criticism from environmental groups and some lawmakers who say it would harm the environment and disrupt the Delta’s ecosystem. The project is expected to cost $17 billion and take about 10 years to complete.

Roger Stone says he will testify

By ROX LAIRD

Roger Stone, a close associate of President Donald Trump, is scheduled to testify before the House Intelligence Committee on Thursday. Stone has been under investigation for his role in Trump’s 2016 campaign and his contacts with Russia.

Stone, who has been accused of obstruction of justice and lying to Congress, said in court this week that he did not intend to be a witness against Trump. He also said he wanted to be able to testify in a fair and impartial manner.
